PEABODY'S CASE CLOSED STATE HAS BEEN PUT TO GREAT

EXPENSE.

H. Peabody's contest for the office of governor closed this evening. Briefs will be submitted to the contest com mittee this week by both sides and the committee is required under the rules adopted by the general assembly to present its report and recommenda-tions on March 1 to Lieutenant Governor McDonald, president of the joint committee of the legislature by which the contest will be finally decided. The joint committee will receive the report on March 2 and will then de-termine how much time will be al-lowed for argument.

Sub-Committee Appointed.

According to a resolution adopted at the session tonight a committee of three, consisting of Senator Dick and Representative Thomas, Republicans, and Representative Davis, Democrat, will frame the report on the findings of fact and conclusions of law that the committee will present to the joint assembly. This measure was resolutely opposed by the Democratic members of the committee. The sub-committee, according to a provision of the resolution, must have the report ready for presentation to the sub-committee. presentation to the sub-committee by 11;30 o'clock Saturday, Feb. 25. Only two or three witnesses were put on the stand in rebuttal.

Thirty days have been consumed in hearing evidence in the case and the expenses of the contest to be borne by the state will amount to more than

What Peabody Asks.

On the face of the returns as canvassed Governor Adams' majority was 9,774. Mr. Peabody asked to have the precincts outside the city thrown out in consequence of frauds. Handwriting experts, testifying for Peabody, claimed to have found 7,327 bogus ballots among those in the Denver boxes which they examined. Ninety-eight voters have among the present the present the control of th voters have appeared in person before the contest committee and identified their ballots among those classed as bogus by the experts and Adams' attorneys claim to have proven about 4,500 such ballots genuine by the depositions of the persons to whom they are credited on the poll books. Should the contest committee decide, however, reject the 104 Denver precincts Adams' attorneys will endeavor to have similar action taken as to a number of precincts in Las Animas and Huer-fano counties, which were carried by Peabody. With this end in view they introduced expert testimony similar to that given in regard to the Denver

Adams Disapproves.

Governor Adams disapproves of the demonstration in his favor at the capitol March 2, which has been proposed by the Building Trades council of this city and, in deference to his wishes, the labor organizations may decide to hold mass meetings elsewhere instead of assembling at the capitol. The governor has made his views known in the

"This permission granted by the constitution of Colorado cannot be denied the people, but in the present excitement of the public mind I deem it unwise for the people to assemble as intimated in the resolutions published. I am not surprised that the threatened danger to the ballot and free government should awaken the people, but this is a time for calmness

Humiliating Failure.

No honest man who has read the testimony can for a mo-ment doubt my right to the governor-ship. So clear is this that I am will-ing to trust to the integrity of the legislature, that their sense of justice, their duty to Colorado will master even the strongest partisanship. "Those who would assemble are good loyal citizens. Two Victims Seeking a Loophole of Escape.

DENVER, Feb. 19.—Hearing of testi-mony in Former Governor James OLD GAME CAUGHT THEM SIGNATURES BEAR WITNESS AGAINST THEM.

> Mt. Pleasant, Feb. 19.-A graft that is new in detail, but old in principle, is being worked upon some of the resi dents of this county who reside away from the larger settlements. Informa-tion concerning the working of the scheme came to the surface this morning by the arrival of a gentleman from Milburn, who reached here at 3 a. m., after walking the twenty miles from his home, in search of legal advice, he having signed papers in the hands of the operator which obligate him to the extent of over $330.

The sale of a graphophone and sets The sale of a graphophone and sets of records accompanying it is the foundation upon which the swindle is operated. There are at least two of the gang, one to solicit and contract for sales, the second one to deliver and collect. The machine is sold for $15, but a liberal discount of from 50 to 75 per cent is allowed if the victim is slow about purchasing, and he is made to believe that the sale is made to him only in order to introduce the instrument in the community. In order to make the graphophone of any value it must, of course, be accompanied by records. These are sold in sets, and therein lies the swindle. The operator gives his victim to understand that these sets are sold at a low figure, and the contract apparently reads that way, but when the collector arrives he points out that by the manuer in which points out that by the manner in which the little word "each" is inserted the price paid is very high, indeed. The Milburn gentleman signed to take twenty-two of these records, under-standing that he was to get the entire lot for $15, his reading of the contract bearing out this understanding also. When the time for payment came, however, it was claimed, and borne out by the contract, that he was to pay $15 each for the sets, thus obligating himself for over $330 for the instrument

When the gentleman from the reached here this morning he awaited the coming of daylight, and then began inquiring to learn if others had been worked by the graft. One other, at least, had bought the machine under the same conditions, purchasing der the same conditions, purchasing twenty-two of the records for $15 each, and that that amount the first that it waiting for them. STRANGE EFFECT ON NAMES OF A BRIEF VISIT TO PROVO

Following the visit of the lower house of the legislature to the State Mental hospital last Friday, the Provo Enquirer printed what purported to be a series of interviews with the visitors. The evident purpose of the story was to make clear that the visit would prove a great benefit to Provo, and in this much the story reveals a commendable motive. Some of the interviews, however, have caused astonishment in Salt Lake. Among them may be mentioned the following:

Representative M. Whitiker, Salt Lake—"We have had a splendid day. From the moment we arrived every minute has been full of good things."

Representative W. E. Rigby, Salt Lake—"We have been given a grand reception; everything was simply fine."

Representative W. E. Rigby, Salt Lake—"We have been given a grand reception; everything was simply fine."

Representative M. Whitiker, Rigby whipple or Parry, nor are any of these names to be found on the membership roll of the present house. Opinion in Salt Lake is divided as to whether these interviews were turned in the Enquirer by an inmate of the mental hospital or whether a representative of the Enquirer inadvertently interviewed inmates of the mental hospital or whether a representative of the Enquirer inadvertently interviewed inmates of the mental hospital or whether a representative of the Enquirer inadvertently interviewed inmates of the mental hospital or whether a representative of the Enquirer inadvertently interviewed inmates of the mental hospital or whether a representative of the Enquirer inadvertently interviewed inmates of the mental hospital or whether a representative of the Enquirer inadvertently interviewed inmates of the mental hospital or whether of the mental hospital or whether a representative of the Enquirer inadvertently interviewed inmates of the mental hospital or whether of the

Over the dreary wastes the Magi folowed their star, says Zion's Herald. It grew dear to them in the long silence of the night journeys. It blazed for grew dear to them in the long of the night journeys. It blazed for them like a beacon of hope, alluring and assuring them as they pressed onward. They were men of the deserts, accustomed to gazing into the starry deeps, accustomed to naming the constellations. They belonged to the trustful childhood of humanity which can find God very near in distant stars and the Lone Star state, and to the provision that would allow the state at any time to divide into five separate states.

Then they came to the city. They even came to Herod's court. It was a new world. It was utterly unlike the mysterious tents of a shiek in the free-dom of the desert, this thronged, gay, plotting Jerusalem. The Magi were not at home there. Yet the city wove its spell about them. Their hearts were stifled in its narrow walls; but the charm of its midnight and the splendor the great city was lost, and the Magi set out on their quest once more. Suddenly the dear familiar star that they had followed and loved in the earlier days burst forth in clear shining before them. "And when they saw the star they rojoiced with exceeding great joy." Perhaps they followed it and loved it all the better after their experience in the great city.

The whole incident may be read as a parable. We follow our star in the simple faith and unshaken trust of our chilhood, pressing forward in the quest which our mother's teachings made holy for us. We follow our star until at length the great tasks of life absorbus and we are tempted to forget the us and we are tempted to forget the earlier guide while we are dazzled with the artificial and the gay in this great city of worldly endeavor. We lose our star. But God is keeping it ready

(London Chronicle.)

A miraculous cure has just been effected by the cold weather at Pauthaquet. Alvergne. John Rougier, 54 years of age, an agricultural laborer, lost his speech in 1887, after a severe attack of typhoid fever. At this time he was a parish school teacher, and naturally was compelled to resign his position and seek other work.

The other day, on going to work as usual, he was suddenly seized with faintness, owing to the extreme cold, and would have been frozen to death had not some passer-by come to his assistance and restored him to consciousness. It was then found, to the great surprise of everyone, that he had revained his powers of speech.
